THE STEED OF STEAM.

BY O. W. WHARTON.

Hast thou given the horse strength? Hast thou clothed his back with thunder? He saith among the trumpets, ha! ha! The glory of his nostrils is terrible.—Job.

Yes, girded with thunder, the glory and wonder
Of the whole earth whose empire he claims,
He spans its vast arch in the might of his march,
And the pride of the war-horse he shames;
Lo, his nostrils breathe fire and his limbs never tire,
As from ocean to ocean he bounds,
And he lengthens the day on his westward way,
In the race with the sun on his rounds.

Aye, aye, he hath come from prophecy's home,
Like a bolt from God he is driven;
With his whirlwind aback in his fast beaten track,
He beareth his mission from heaven;
Though the storm hurries on, the goal he has won,
Ere a leaf is disturbed by its din,
From his eye flames a ray of the dawn of a day,
That shall lighten the world of its sin.

More potent his wheel of the old-fabled reel
Of the Fates in the mystic Helusion,
For no fable is he in his terrible glee,
But a fact of portentious conclusion:—
From his bosom's deep glow springs a fetterless throe,
That shakes all the tyrannous thrones,
While his fierce trumpet-call wakens life into all
The world's valleys of dead, dry bones,

In the old ages dim how they wearied for him,
As they waited his coming to see,
To gather our race in his iron embrace,
Till neighbors the nations should be,
And his commerce should learn all their hatreds to turn
To the soothing of past-given pain:—
Now the Orient's clasp in the Occident's grasp;
Makes the stars sing together again.

'Tis thus he is here in his mighty career—
This steam-steed of modern renown,
And the olden war horse in his thunderous course,
Must yield up the conqueror's crown;
For the lightning glare he flings on the air,
Proclaims the pure purpose of heaven,
To speed him along till the last feudal wrong
With its last slavish fetter is riven.

From Atlantic's wild tide to Pacific's calm side,
Let his march be an emblem of Mind:—
That, leaving the past to with strife overcast,
It has come to the help of mankind;
Then war shall no more flood the planet with gore,
To please the curst tyrants of men,
And the land shall increase with the myrtles of peace,
To the boom of glad Eden again.

History of the 49th Pennsylvania.

BY A. B. HUTCHISON,
Late Captain of Company 'C.'

CHAPTER XII.

Our March to Gettysburg—The second Day's Fight—The third Day's Fight—The Fourth of July—Retreat of the Enemy—Pursuit to Fairfield.

About 9 o'clock, p. m., July 1st, we commenced our march to Gettysburg, passing back over the road we had come the day before, to near Westminister again. The interference of trains, and movements of other troops, prevented our getting on with much expedition, until daylight, when the whole corps being well in motion, we took the pike to Gettysburg, and marched off at a fair rate. No time was given for securing breakfast, men had had little sleep in the night, the road was still heavy, and we had no time to waste, as Gettysburg was 36 miles away, and our troops there in peril. All along the road, especially as we neared the Pennsylvania line, the people were very friendly, and carried water to the troops as they passed by, all the time exhorting us to drive back the rebels, of whom they seemed to be in great terror. The march was a very severe one; but the sound of the guns on the soil of the Keystone, the encouragement of the people along our road, their kindness, and their very natural terror, seemed to appeal to the men, and to excite their enthusiasm. As we neared the State Line, (Mason & Dixon's Line,) all inquired, eagerly, of the people, as to the exact location, that they might know when they first stepped upon Pennsylvania soil. An old man, living just over the border, pointed it out, and as the line was reached, the regiment passed it on a run, with cheers. A young lady, standing at the door of a little house, just on the Pennsylvania side, with our flag in her hands, was the first to welcome our regiment to its native soil. She was most enthusiastically cheered by our troops, who had seldom, in Virginia, found so fair a welcome, or seen so pretty a girl. In fact, our enthusiastic young lady friend was so cheered and complimented by the men, that she retired, in confusion, to the friendly shelter of her home.

As we approached Littlestown, evidences of the battle began to thicken.—Farmers were fleeing with their horses and cattle, the country people lined the roads everybody in holiday dress, but very evidently not in holiday spirits, and all full of rumors of the great battle, and all anxious we should get to the scene, and help drive back the terrible rebels. At Littlestown the streets were lined with people, and every kindness was shown us by the ladies, who began then to find enough work in caring for the wounded, who were being brought in from the front.

We could still hear the guns as we moved up, and the long, hard march was greatly relieved by the excitement incident to the scenes along the route of our first march through a really friendly country. We arrived on the field at about 3 p. m., having then marched thirty-six miles without a halt or a meal, starving the evening before at 9 o'clock.

We were allowed now to get a cup of coffee, and then were moved forward to relieve a portion of the troops on the line. We had no fighting to do on the line after our arrival, nor was the battle seriously renewed this evening anywhere. We did not get any rest, however, as we were kept moving from point to point, as the enemy seemed to threaten different portions of our line, until quite late, when we lay down to sleep, in line of battle. Next morning we received Gen. Meade's Order, assuming command, and also an order as to our conduct in the fight. We had heard rumors of the change of commanders for several days, but we had never known the fact certainly before. Until this time we had supposed ourselves still under the command of Gen. Hooker. Our having been separated from the rest of the army, to operate against Longstreet, after the movement North had commenced, prevented our getting any intelligence as to the movements and changes in the army, and now that we had joined the main force, after our hard march, our corps was held in reserve, for emergencies, and distributed along the line, by brigades, wherever it seemed most probable we should be needed.

Gen. Meade announced the grave importance of a victory to our cause at this crises, and ordered any officer or soldier, who deserted any other in cowardly desertion of his post, to shoot him down at sight. A strong Provost Guard also were detailed with orders to shoot stragglers from the lines, if they refused to go at once to the front. It is a fact, very creditable to our army, that no one was shot in the fight, in consequence of this order, so far as we know.

On July 3d, we were moved, early in the morning, very rapidly, to the extreme left, and rear of Round Top, to guard our left flank from an anticipated movement around the mountain. We took [illegible] and everything of the sort, and made a rifle pit on our front, and waited developments. The forenoon of this memorable third day of July, saw no particular movements, so far as we were concerned, and we heard no fighting, of any account, along the line.

At times, a stillness that was death-like, the calm that precedes the storm, appeared to reign over the lines of both the struggling, bleeding armies that were now nerving for the great decisive struggle that was big with all the future of half a world, for a battle that, either its importance to men, or its bloody details must, in history, stand forever pre eminent, even over the Waterloo that decided only the location of a few boundary lines, and the fate of a few effets and and worthless princes.

One of our most respectable citizens called into the establishment of a joking druggist, last summer, and overcome by the sultry weather, sat down in a chair, and was soon enjoying a sound slumber. Observing that the sleeper had on a fine new hat, the druggist gently removed it, substituting in its place an old one with a sadly dilapidated and rusty crown. The citizen at last awoke, and after a few "h-hums," felt of the hat, which was rather a tight fit. Removing it from his head, and taking a steady gaze at the battered relic, he turned to the druggist and inquired.

"Did I sleep a long time?"

"Yes," replied the joker, "a very long time."

"Well," continued the first, "I should judge I had for when I came into your store this old hat was bran new.

A Conundrum.—A young man seated at dinner, the other day, said to his wife:

"Ellen, if you are good at guessing, here is a conundrum for you: If the devil should lose his tail where would he go to get another one?"

After some time spent in guessing, she gave it up.

"Well" said he, "where they re-tail spirits.

Eager to get it off, she hastened to a lady friend with;

"Oh, Marian, I have such a nice conundrum! Joe just told me of it. I know you can't guess it. If the devil should lose his tail where would he go to get another one?"

Her friend Marian having given it up she said;

"Where they sell liquor by the glass."

Marian didn't see the point of the joke.

Domestic Scene.—"Pretty time of night, Mr. M——, for you to come home—pretty time, three o'clock in the morning; you, a respectable man in the community, and the father of a family."

"Tisn't three—it's only one. I heard it strike. Council always sits till one o'clock."

"My soul! Mr. M——, you're drunk—as true as I'm alive; you're drunk. It's three in the morning."

"I say, Mrs. M——, it's one, I heard it strike one as I came around the corner two or three times."

His spouse could say no more; so she retired.

The Teacher and the Pupil.

BY I. W. C.

The school-room is a little world, bounded by the walls which separate it from the world without. The teacher is its sun, whose rays illumine the minds of the children that people it; he stands between the known and the unknown, supplying the link by which they may clasp the past and the future; one hand in the child's, with the other he may point upwards to God, the author and end of our being. Particularly impressible is the mind of youth before contact with the world, and its cares and disappointments have embittered it and made it suspicious. The teacher may mould at will. He may lead the minds of his pupils above the sordid things of earth, to higher and nobler themes. The youth of to-day are the nation's hope. Make them realize that, when we shall have passed away, they, as our representatives, must do a better work than we have done. Teach them that there is but one safeguard in life—to do right always. A laudable ambition is honorable, and should be encouraged; but a spirit to excel, despite the cost of principles of honor, or the happiness of others, should be curbed whenever manifested. The teacher may judiciously train his pupils to respect the past, while they admire the present. Great and good men have lived before us; the leading principles which controlled their lives, we may inculcate. Many of them have attained heights which we may scarcely hope to reach; but "the world does move," and we with it. The spirit of progress should pervade our school-rooms. The teacher should be a live person, dealing with live children. In every sense, he should be reformatory. Rooting out the evil, transplanting, when need be, and always sowing fresh seeds of morality and virtue. The teacher's life should be a protest against vice in any garb.—Theory avails little without practice; his aim should be to present a model for all to imitate. He should strive at perfection—physically, mentally and morally. The relation of teacher to pupil is second only to that of parent to child. It is essential, then, in the highest degree, that he acquaints himself with the disposition, habits and home-culture of the youth confided to his trust. The sculptor chisels it into forms of beauty; he must know the nature of the material with which he deals. So must the teacher analyze the character of his pupils, carefully eradicating the germs of misguidance, and implanting, instead, those of true manhood. His life should be so noble, that vice would hide its hideous head at his approach. Truth, so lovely everywhere, is a crown of glory upon the teacher's brow. Its radiant halo shines upon all around him, inspiring love for it, for its own sake. In every transaction, strict integrity is the mainspring which should govern actions. It is our privilege, so to conduct ourselves, as to win the confidence and love of our pupils. We may participate in their joys and sorrows. They look to us for help in every time of need. They enshrine us in their little hearts—have full faith in our ability, and follow, implicitly, where we lead. We may teach them to be honest, as we are honest, in thought, word and deed; not because it is policy to live uprightly, but because there is a charm in the path of virtue, which is not found elsewhere. We may weave, here and there, a silken cord of charity, show them that there are wells of goodness in every nature, if we but drop the bucket deep enough to prove it. The silver lining is only tarnished; 'twill brighten, if polished by love and kindness. Teach that true dignity commands respect from all, and yields deference when it is due.

The youth of to-day are so much impressed with their own importance, that they often disregard the courtesies which age and experience should claim. They scoff at things whose history is the past, and revel in the greater now. Teachers who wish to inspire patience, must be patient. Check the hasty word, or frowning look, ere it reaches the surface.

You will conquer, by kind words, what you cannot reach otherwise, and they, in turn, will imitate. Habits mould character. So, if it be a daily occurrance to instil principles of industry, cheerfulness, perseverance, neatness and refinement, we will find these principles becoming powerful and controlling in their lives.

They should be admonished that time, indeed, is money. That life is but fleeting, at best, and that, with the great book of nature open before us, it were sacrilige to ponder idly over its leaves. They should be kind and polite to all. It is not enough that our pupils salute us respectfully. Each of God's creatures has a claim upon the notice of others, be he high or low, rich or poor. But we should, at the same time, carefully train them to discriminate between courtesy and servility.

By example, the teacher may lead his pupils to shrink, instinctively, from the coarse and vulgar, and appreciate refinement, in thought and expression. By precept and illustration, aptly drawn, he may teach that order is Heaven's first law, and that "cleanliness is next to godliness."

All instruction should tend to one great end—moral development. The mottoes upon the wall; the conversation at recess; the songs at the opening of school, all aid in the work. Music is all-powerful in subduing the evil influences within the heart; it is a blessed boon in the school-room. The little songs we sing there together, accompany us through life. Hence, the selection of proper school-songs, is a matter of no trifling importance.

Inspire pupils with a spirit of patriotism. Broaden the platform, so that what was heretofore love of home and dear ones, may now, in its wider development, become love of country. Teach them to live for their friends, and humanity; and die for their principles, or nation, if need be.

This is not an age of vacillation.—Men must be firm. Having taken a stand for liberty and right, they must be unyielding. Children may be trained to be staunch and true, unflinching when duty calls, and to yield obedience to parents, and to the laws of the State, not from compulsion, but because it is right. We mistake the means, when we incite our pupils to well doing, through fear of punishment. Love is a more potent agent. Let us make their hearts right, and their lives will be pure. Ours is no thankless task, as some would seem to make it. Each day our reward comes back to us in the love of our pupils.—Their bright smiles, speaking of peace and contentment within, their pleasant words fall like sweetest music upon our ears. Their tiny gifts of flowers, show a just appreciation of our life work.

To-day we miss from the school-room those who long have listened to our counsel. To-morrow we hear from them in the great world outside. The teacher's hand will not always be with them, to guide them o'er the sea of life. Each must, in his turn, go forth alone. For them the tidal waves of duty will ebb and flow, and if we have been faithful to our trust, our reward comes back to us in their lives and mission. But if we have been derelict in duty, or have grown weary in well-doing, at no time do we feel remorse so keenly as when called to lay one of these little ones in the silent grave. We think of the unimproved moments gone forever—the imputent words which cannot be recalled, and bitterly does memory picture to us our past neglect. As we gaze upon the closed eyelids, the hands fold'd over the little breast, we weep that we were so unfaithful to our trust. No cloud of sorrow should have rested upon them through fault of ours; but their souls, which we might have made brighter, have gone home to God. Will he not hold us responsible for our stewardship?

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, June 2, '69.

ADVERTISING.—The BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN has a larger circulation than any other Republican paper published in the county. Our merchants and business men will please make a note of this.

"Attend to Your own Household."

The Pittsburg Commercial of the 28th inst., in an article with the above title, says that "the Commercial, in common with other Republican journals, in its efforts to purge our State of legislative corruption and profligacy, has directed its attention, exclusively, to the misdeeds of Republican members." We have no doubt that the Commercial is "in earnest on this question of legislative reform," and we believe that it has done a good work, and saved thousands of dollars to the State, and nobly vindicated the character of the great Republican party, by its able articles, and its high and manly tone; but have we not had about enough of it? If the discussion must go on, why not begin at the foundation? Why not take the Legislative Record and show how every member voted on every bill? If any member, or members, received bribes, or voted for wicked and corrupt bills, for a price to them in hand paid, why not give the names of each and every one of them, and, at the same time, publish the price each one received? If the Commercial has chosen to attend to our household only, and to expose none but Republicans, it should know what it is doing, and should be able to give names, amount of money received, and the character of every bill voted for by these corruptionists, or forever hold its peace. Talk is cheap. Charges are easily made; but what does it all amount to in the absence of the necessary proof? Is it honest? Is it just and fair on the part of the Commercial to seek to throw suspicions upon, or blacken the character of any member of the Republican party by mere insinuations? Let us have the names of the guilty parties, and the evidence of their guilt. Give us these, or cease to trouble us further with the subject? If you have chosen to attack only the members of "our household," why travel out of the family to cast aspertions upon the Democratic members MILLERS and the SEARIGHTS, and then withhold the evidence of their guilt? It is not logical. It is not a manly way of fighting to create suspicions upon the character of these men, and turn them over to the mercy of the people, without any evidence of their guilt, and assign no reason for so doing, except, that your "first duty is to the Republican party."

We hold that your first duty is to expose all corruptionists, Republicans and Democrats alike. And while we agree with the Commercial when it says "if stealing is to go on at Harrisburg, we would much rather the Democratic party should furnish the thieves, than that the responsibility should attach to the Republican party," yet we desire a chance, and we hold it is our bounden duty, to expose those thieves.

Believing that our view is the correct one, we appeal to the Commercial, as its facilities for doing so are better than ours, to give us the record in relation to all of these men, and especially of the MEEKS. We are after one of the MEEKS. He is a bitter Copperhead and Edits a notoriously disloyal paper. He mis-represented this county in the Legislature last winter, and, in all probability, will be the Democratic candidate this fall. We want to beat him. The State Guard and the Patriot both excluded him from their list of "honest members." When we appealed to them for an explanation they were dumb. When we arked the Guard to give us the record—the evidence of his having taken corruption money, it refussed to open its mouth. Now, the Commercial has made the insinuation—the charge—that MEEK was among the dishonest members and thieves of the last Legislature. We appeal to it to furnish the evidence of his guilt. We confess we are not able to find any evidence of corruption against him. If he accepted a bribe, and the Editor of the Commercial knows that it is so, he should, for the sake of the Republican party in this county, give us all the facts.

To make charges, and then fail to prove them, weakens a cause. Our rule is to make no charges against any man, until we first have the evidence in our possession to substantiate them. We are growing stronger, every day, in Centre county. We can defeat Mr. MEEK next fall, on his political record alone; but if he has received bribes in the Legislature, if it is true, as the Commercial intimates, that he is among the Democratic thieves of the last Legislature, it would aid us amazingly. If it is not true, the Commercial and the State Guard should not make the charge, as it will only strengthen him in the estimation of his pets, and followers. Down with the corruptionists; but no false swearing, is our motto. Make out a case, or select some other subject.

Light Ahead.

Centre county, for the last eight years, has been ruled and controlled by the Democratic Wachman and the "Court House Clique." The honest German farmer, as well as many of the laboring men of the county, together with our Irish fellow-citizens, have been lured into the support of this Clique—these bold, bad men who have, all along, sought their own, instead of their country's good. In the great struggle for the Nation's life these men were every one arrayed against the Union soldiers and in full sympathy with Southern rebels. They opposed the war, they resisted the draft, abused and derided the Union soldier, while they had only kindness for Gen. LEE and JEFF. DAVIS in their unholy crusade against the Government.

These men must be overthrown.—They must be hurled from power and place, and the character of Centre Co. redeemed. We see light ahead. The masses and tax-payers of the county are becoming restless under the heavy burdens imposed upon them by their county leaders—the cliques who have fed, fattened and grown wealthy at the expense of the tax-ridden people.—Hundreds of these men have resolved to throw off the Democratic yoke and leave the foul party forever. Our Irish citizens have become tired of doing the dirty work for this wicked, anti-christian and traitorous Ring, and resolved to play cats-paw for them no longer.—They see that Democracy is but a name that is arrayed against the true liberalism or genuine Democracy of the country; that it advocates FREE TRADE, thus ignoring the interests of the working classes of America, and building up and strengthening the power of ENGLAND, and binding tighter and tighter still, the chains forged by the English tyrants for the Irish Nation. This portion of the sham Democratic party, we say, are beginning to see the folly of their past course, and are determined to act with the enemies of their adopted, as well as their native, country no longer. The Bellefonte clique realizes this truth, this great change in the feelings and sympathies of the masses of their party and they are trembling like aspen leaves.

P. G. MEEK reads the signs of the times, and sees in the coming contest, the total rout of his rebel hordes and treason sympathisers in Centre county. He would give the world, if he possessed it, to have his political record blotted out of existence. He would like to talk to the soldiers. He would be willing to make any sacrifice to obtain their confidence; but his record, black and damning as it is, is made, and he cannot obliterate it. He is ashamed to appeal to the soldier—the "Lincoln hirelings." He is too proud to attempt to rally the Irish of the party, for in his opinion, and the opinion of the clique, the Irish dare not say their souls are their own, or do anything else than vote the Democratic ticket. But some of them have openly declared to leave the party, notwithstanding MEEK'S ravings and threats, and the little fellow is in an awful way. It is said that he is afraid to be a candidate for re-election this fall. This frightens the "Court House Ring," for when MEEK'S courage oozes out there can be no hope for members of the Ring, who never sneeze only when P. G. MEEK takes snuff.

With all these facts before you, Republicans of Centre, what is your duty? Commence to work now. Explain the curses of Free Trade and the blessings of PROTECTION to home industry, to every man that wants light on the subject. Wherever you meet an Irish fellow citizen, show him what the Republican party has done and is still doing for him in this his adopted country, and for his friends and Nation at home in his beloved Ireland.

Cast about you for good men, the very best, to place upon the Republican county ticket this fall. Select no man because he wants office; but select with a view to talent and availability. When you find such men, inform him or them that the party in the county needs their services and we intend to have them. Let us work, work, work, and a glorious victory awaits us. Bring out our best and purest men and the redemption of Centre county and the death of the "Court House Clique" are both sure and certain events.

State Convention.

The 23d of June will soon be here. On that day the State Convention will meet. Their business will be to nominate a candidate for Governor, and a candidate for the Supreme Judgeship. We take it for granted that Judge WILLIAMS, who is already upon the Bench, will be our candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court. We are satisfied that no better man than Judge WILLIAMS can be found for the position. The contest for Governor has narrowed down to two candidates. Our present excellent Governor, Gen. JNO. W. GEARY and Gen. JOHN F. HARTRANFT, now Aud'r Gen. of the State. They are both good men, and either of them, if nominated, shall have our most enthusiastic support; but we cannot refrain from giving it as our opinion, that Gen. HARTRANFT would make the strongest candidate, and give us the State by an unprecedented majority.

Gov. GEARY has made a good, nay more, he has made a most excellent Governor; he has paid off more of the State debt during his administration than any of his predecessors, and the tax-payers of the State know it. We can re-elect him, but not so easily as we can Gen. HARTRANFT. We know a great many delegates are instructed for Gov. GEARY—a majority of the politicians are for Gov. GEARY—but the people, who are not men-worshipers, who do not bow to power, and who seek the welfare of our noble Commonwealth and the success of the Union Republican party are in favor of a new man, and that man is Maj. Gen'l. JOHN F. HARTRANFT.

If the delegates who assemble in the State Convention on the 23d inst., will consult the best interest of the State and party—act honestly, fairly and without partiality, and after due deliberation and a survey of the whole field, deem the re-nomination of Gov. GEARY, the best that can be made, we will say amen, and enter the campaign with all our force, and never give over the struggle until the nominee of the party is triumphantly elected on the second Tuesday of October next. This is our position on this question. We seek only the good of the commonwealth and the prosperity and permanent success of the Republican party.

Altoona District Sunday School Convention.

CENTRAL PENN'A. CONFERENCE, M. E. CHURCH.

Held at Tyrone, Pa., on the 18th, 19th, and 20th days of May, A. D. 1869.

In pursuance of a notice previously given throughout the District, the Convention met at Tyrone, Blair co., Pa., on Tuesday evening, May 18th 1869. The services of the evening were conducted by Rev. Sam'l W. Sears, of Philipsburg station, who preached a very able and appropriate sermon, from the 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th verses of the 21st chapter of the Gospel by St. John, taking for his subject the last clause of the 15th verse: "Feed my lambs."

The Convention met at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and, after devotional exercises by Rev. Wm. G. Ferguson, of Curwensville station was organized by electing Rev. J. S. McMurray, (P. E.,) President. A committee, consisting of Hon. J. Patton, of Curwensville, Rev. W. H. Dill and Wm. M. McCullough, of Clearfield, had been previously appointed to arrange a programme for the Convention, which was adopted as reported. The following delegates were present, besides a large number of ministers, superintendents, teachers, and friends of the Sunday School:

Theodore Burchfield,	H. Garner,
Mrs. A. A. Stevens,	Laura E. Cleaver,
E. B. McCrum,	W. Addleman,
J. Dunahon,	Daniel Kintch,
T. W. Heard,	H. A. Barthurst,

T. W. Thompson,	Rev. Wm. H. Dill,
W. F. Hoar,	Wm. M. McCullough,

Mrs. Jennie Haylett,	E. K. Shirey,
Miss Clara McCoy,	L. K. McCullough,

Daniel Mowery,	Samuel Arnold,
Monroe Ake,	Wm. P. Dale,
D. D. Crowell,	Rev. J. W. Buckley,
Thomas McCartney,	J. A. Rakestraw,
Wm. B. Wertz,	Miss R. E. Rishel,
Kate Beyer,	H. B. Wright,
Jas. McClintic,	Alexander Bob,
Keafer Leathers,	Joseph Akers,
J. W. Cleaver,	John Williams,
W. W. Reese,	Jacob Longnecker,
John Shiffer,	Carrie Smith,
A. J. Orndorf,	Jos. R. McMurray,
Dr. S. A. Martin,	James F. Weaver,
J. H. Lever,	James Thomas.

The Convention was largely attended by the friends of the Sunday School cause, and by the citizens generally of Tyrone and vicinity. Some of the meetings were of the most interesting character, and we are only sorry that we have not space to lay the proceedings in full before the public. On the whole, the Convention was a grand success, and we have no doubt all the friends of Sunday Schools returned to their homes feeling that "it was good to be here," and animated with a stronger desire to promote the interests of the scholars of their schools, and the cause of Christ.

Too much cannot be said in praise of The Tyrone School and those having it in charge. At the Children's Meeting, on Wednesday afternoon, they earned an enviable reputation as a school of singing children. When near three hundred youthful voices commenced to sing that most beautiful hymn, "Gather at the River," it seemed as if the heavens had suddenly opened above us, and our ears were charmed with the music of angelic voices.

We cannot close this imperfect report, without speaking of the hospitality of the citizens of Tyrone, and especially of those private families and hotel-keepers, ("Ward House," "City Hotel," and "Exchange Hotel,") who so kindly received and entertained the delegates during their stay, as well as Rev. Thos. Barnhart, preacher in charge at Tyrone, who provided them with homes. Near the close of the Convention, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Convention prepare an abstract of the proceedings and have it published in such papers of the District, as may be agreed upon by him and the Presiding Elder.

On Thursday evening, may 20th, having gone through with the programme, and there being no further business before Convention, after singing the Doxology, the Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Thomas Barnhart, when the Convention adjourned, to meet again on the first Tuesday of June, 1870, at Hollidaysburg.

"GRANDFATHERS' STOVE."

[illegible] stove, which is the [illegible] thing,
So deep, so wide and so tall;
Now the people would say, who are stylish and gay,
"It was only a hole in the wall."

It matters not what, it was pleasant to see
When night's mantle was flung over all;
Grandfather take down his good book and read
By the light from the hole in the wall.

As the sturdy young men rolled in the great logs,
They would laugh at each wintry squall,
While[illegible] grandma would sit on her old chair and knit
By the light from the whole in the wall.

The girls then wore home spun, and so did their beaux's,
For pride was a principle small;
And courting was done and hearts have been won
By the light from the hole in the wall.

The neighbors were friendly wherever they'd meet,
With a word of true kindness for all;
And joy was complete to hear voices so sweet
Ring round that old hole in the wall.

In those days we know, folks cared not for show,
Of improvements knew nothing at all;
But 'twas really no joke, when great clouds of smoke
Rushed out from the hole in the wall.

But those days are now o'er, we shall know them no more,
And all those old fashions have flown;
Whilst the solemn and gay are coming each day
To purchase the famous "OLD HOUSE."

Coming not only in couples, but in scores, as hundreds of good and wise men and women have done before, to look upon this magnificent stove, which is acknowledged to be the best cooking stove of the age. Remember the place,

COMPLETION OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

GREAT RUSH TO STERNBERG'S.

Sung to the Tune of Yankee Doodle.

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And now comple connection's made,—
An enterprising notion.

The mighty work at last is done,
So speedily and brisk, oh!
And now in ten days we can run
From here to San Francisco.

No more we take the ancient route,
The stage, a horrid slow thing;
It banged the passengers about,
And wore out all their clothing.

CHORUS, for the end of each verse:

The Great Pacific Railroad's laid,
From ocean unto ocean,
And we buy clothes from A. STERNBERG.
A most delightful notion.

Through passengers by the Pacific Railroad will call at the store of A. Sternberg, before starting, and provide themselves with a complete outfit of the elegant and substantial Spring and Summer Clothing, the very best assortment of which will always be found at A. Sternberg's Store.

People who travel by other routes, and also people who, instead of traveling by any route at all, prefer to stay at home, can find the most superior and seasonable garments, for every occasion, of every variety, and at the lowest prices.

Do not fail to call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere; if you do not, we are sure you will be sorry that you did not. Our goods are put down to the lowest figure. We sell whole suits, according to quality,

CENTRE COUNTY SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The first Convention of the Centre County Sabbath School Association assembled in the Borough of Bellefonte, on Tuesday evening, May 25th, 1869. Gen. James A. Beaver, Pres't. in the chair. The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. J. P. Hughes, and an address of welcome by the Chairman.

The Rev. B. McGann, of Bellefonte, opened the discussion of "The relation of the Sabbath School to the Church," in an instructive address. The speaker argued that the Sabbath School was the hope of the church, and that while it was originally organized to meet the wants of the poor and uneducated, it now seemed to be equally necessary and advantageous for all classes.

The President then announced the next subject for discussion—"How to make the Sabbath School Interesting," and the Rev. Geo. H. Shinn, of Lock Haven, who was to have opened the subject, being absent, Rev. J. P. Hughes, of Bellefonte, was called upon, and responded in an earnest address on the subject. The speaker urged the importance of beautiful and convenient rooms, good libraries and fine music, and recommended monthly or quarterly concerts. The discussion of this subject was continued by Prof. Hastings and the Chairman, each urging the importance of those things which go to make up the attractive features of the school.

The Chairman then called on Prof. Hastings to explain the modus operandi of the school under his charge, in order to open the discussion of the next subject on the programme—"Modes of Conducting Sabbath Schools." The speaker recommended weekly teachers' meetings, the uniform lesson system, and the use of black-boards in sabbath-schools. Mr. Jacob Hughes argued that the prime necessity of all sabbath-schools was piety and sociability on the part of Superintendents and teachers. The discussion of this subject was continued by Messrs. Burrows, Burgen, McGann and Yocum, who gave their several views on the various modes of conducting sabbath-schools. After a meeting of over two hours duration, in which a large and intelligent audience manifested a most gratifying interest, the convention adjourned, with the benediction by the Rev. B. McGann, at 10, p. m.

MORNING SESSION, May 26, 1869.

The business meeting of the Association assembled at 9½, a. m., President Beaver in the chair. The meeting was opened with reading of the Scriptures and prayer by the Rev. Mr. Senser, after which the minutes of the last session were read, amended and adopted.

On motion of Rev. B. McGann, amended by Hon. Frederick Kurtz, it was agreed that the Association hold two Institutes in addition to the annual convention, and that these Institutes be held in different places from the County Convention.

On motion, the Convention proceeded to select the places for holding the institutes, and the next Annual Convention. Centre Hall was fixed upon as the place for holding the next Annual Convention, and, after considerable friendly discussion of the merits and advantages of Rebersburg, Milesburg, Boalsburg and Philipsburg, it was finally agreed upon to hold the first Institute at Rebersburg, and the second at Milesburg. The attendance of delegates and friends, of the cause, was good, and the interest manifested encouraging. The meeting closed at 11½, a. m., with the doxology and benediction.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention assembled at 2:30, p. m., President Beaver in the chair, and was opened with singing, reading of the Scriptures, and prayer by the Rev. P. Sahm, of Rebersburg. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The Rev. Alfred Taylor, Secretary of the State Sabbath School Association, being present, then addressed the convention on the subject of "Infant Classes." The speaker dwelt upon the importance of thorough ventilation, and stated that, while this was necessary to the interest and comfort of infant classes, it was, unfortunately, very often neglected, even in churches of great cost, and splended appearance. He urged that the best teachers be assigned to infant classes, and that the exercises be so conducted as to impress some one truth clearly on their minds at every session of the class. The Rev. P. Sahm, of Aaronsburg, followed, explaining the best methods of ventilation, and discussed the various modes of teaching infant classes. As infancy is the period of imitation, the speaker deemed it of the highest importance that, in purity of speech, and urbanity of manners, the teacher should present an example worthy of imitation.

Rev. J. E. Long, of Hublersburg, enlarged upon the same subject, and was followed by the Rev. J. P. Hughes, who recommended the use of maps for infant classes. The Rev. B. McGann thought appropriate pictures well calculated to impress Scripture truths on infant minds.

The President then announced the next subject—"Teachers' Meetings, their Necessity, their Influence, how Conducted."

Mr. Roberts, of Bellefonte, opened this subject with a neat and appropriate address. The speaker argued the importance of teachers' meetings in view of the magnitude of the subject to be taught, and their adaptation for mutual instruction, counsel, consolation and prayer.—The Rev. J. E. Long, John Hamilton, Rev. P. Sahm, Rev. Alfred Taylor and Rev. Shinn, of Lock Haven, followed, giving their respective views on this subject. They seemed to concur (with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Shinn) in the necessity of teachers' meetings, and recognized the cultivation of the social element as a general want among sabbath-school-workers. The Rev. Mr. Shinn argued that, whilst important, he did not deem teachers' meetings, in all cases, necessary, as many persons were so constituted that they could prepare lessons more effectively at home.

The hour for adjournment having arrived, the meeting closed with prayer, by the Rev. J. E. Long.

EVENING SESSION.

The convention met at 7½, p. m., President Beaver in the chair, and was opened with singing by the choir, and prayer by Rev. J. P. Hudson.

The President announced the first subject for discussion—"Scripture Geography—how taught."

Rev Dr. Osborne, of Easton, Pa., being in attendance, illustrated his method of teaching Scriptural Geography by the use of a map and the black-board, in a most interesting and instructive manner.

The Chairman then announced the next subject for discussion—"The Uniform Lesson System."

The Rev. Mr. Shinn, of Lock Haven, spoke in favor of the system, and illustrated its advantages by a black-board exercise. He was followed by Geo. M. Yocum, who commented on the advantages and disadvantages of the system, and argued that, while generally useful, it would, in some schools, be found to retard rather than advance the interest.—Rev. Alfred Taylor gave an illustration of the system, with the use of the black-board, of general interest.

"Our Aim in Teaching" was announced as the next subject for discussion, when Rev. J. P. Hughes addressed the convention, impressively, on this subject. The house was well filled, and the interest well maintained during the entire session. At 9½, p. m., the convention adjourned with singing, and the benediction by the Rev. Mr. Shinn.

MORNING SESSION, May 27, 1869.

The convention assembled at 9½, p. m., President Beaver in the chair, and was opened with singing, reading of the Scriptures and prayer by the Rev. W. D. Smith.

The Rev Shinn, of Lock Haven, having been absent when the subject "How to make Sabbath Schools Interesting" was discussed, was called upon to give his views on that subject. The speaker urged the importance of cheerful rooms and cheerful teachers, rich in information and preparation. He recommended promptness and energy in conducting schools, and that the exercises should not be so long as to weary. He maintained that the Sabbath schools should be like a well conducted and happy family.

The Rev. J. E. Long opened the subject of "Sabbath-school Literature." He had noticed two extremes. In some libraries the books were too heavy—beyond the comprehension of the scholars; in others, too light and trivial, and often unhealthy in their teachings and tendency. He recommended that appropriate books be selected with great care, and that of the best books a sufficient number of copies be bought to supply the scholars in a reasonable time. Rev. B. McGann argued against the prevailing use of loose works of fiction in our Sabbath-school libraries. He maintained that the materials for good books were abundant, and mentioned Bible biography, and missionary and religious history as prolific sources of appropriate books. Rev. P. Sahm recommended histories of Biblical personages, works on Biblical antiquities, didactic and religious essays, and histories of Biblical times. He thought the capacity of children to comprehend serious and important works, was often underestimated.—Rev. Alfred Taylor spoke on the subject in his usual animated style, and claimed that much of our Sunday-school literature was unfit for use, on account of the improbability of the fiction, and its unhealthy tendency. The speaker cited some amusing examples illustrative of his position. Messrs. Hughes, Yocum and Beerly followed on the same subject. Rev. D. W. Smith did not think a circulating library indispensable, and, if used, thought it should be a strictly Scriptural one. Dr. Van Tries argued against the use of works of fiction in Sabbath schools, and recommended the free use of Sunday-school papers. Rev. Alfred Taylor recommended that each school keep a standing committee to examine and propose books for introduction into their respective libraries. The following resolution was presented by Rev. Mr. Shinn, and adopted by the convention:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to prepare a list of books, such as would be suitable for use in Sabbath school libraries.

The President stated that the committee would be announced at a future session. The convention then adjourned at 12, m, with prayer by the Rev. P. Sahm.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Convention assembled at 2:30, p. m., President Beaver in the chair, and was opened with singing by the choir and children, reading of the Scriptures and prayer by the Rev. B. McGann.

This session being set apart for the "Children's Meeting," several pieces of excellent music were produced with fine effect, after which Dr. Osborne addressed the audience on the scenes and associations of the birth-place of our Saviour, evincing an accurate knowledge of the Geography of the Holy Land. Rev. Alfred Taylor then gave us one of his characteristic exercises on the black-board, and succeeded in interesting even the smallest scholars, by the vivid manner in which he presented and illustrated important Scripture truths. Rev. Mr. Shinn followed, reading, in a most beautiful and effective manner, the story of "Little Will." The reading was unusually fine, and the beauty of the poem attracted general attention. The session was one of great interest, and it is hoped that it will awaken renewed interest in the schools of our town. At 4½, p. m., the convention adjourned with appropriate devotional exercises.

EVENING SESSION.

The convention assembled at 7½ p. m., President Beaver in the chair, and was opened with singing and prayer. The minutes of the morning and afternoon sessions were read and approved. The Chair then announced the following committee on the preparation of a list of books, suitable for Sabbath-school libraries: Rev's Byron, McGann, Hughes, Sahm, Smith, Long and Col. Jas. F. Weaver.

On motion, Gen. James A. Beaver, Rev. B. McGann, J. G. Meyer and Rev. J. E. Long were elected Delegates from Centre county, to the State Sabbath School Convention, which meets in Williamsport. The Secretary then read the following report:

Reports have been received from sixty Sabbath-schools, and so far as has been ascertained, it is believed that there are about twenty Sabbath-schools in operation in the county, from which no reports have been received. The following statistics have been gathered from these reports:

No. of male teachers	295
No. of female teachers	366
Whole No. of S. S. Teach's	661
No. of male scholars	2,085
No. of female scholars	2 225
Whole No. of S. S. Scholars	4,310
Aggregate average attendance	3,591
Average of male scholars in each school	35
Average of female	37
Average no. of scholars	72
Average attendance of scholars in each school	58
Ag. no. of vol's in libraries	15,628
Av. no. in each library	260
Total no. of conversions reported for the year 1868	118
Total contributions for charitable purposes	$1,175 54
No. of schools holding teachers' meetings	8
Approximate no. of schools in the county	80
Av. attendance in each school	72
Approximate aggregate attend'ce in the county	5,760
Population of Centre co. about	40,000
Under the age of 21 y's, about	24,000

From the above data, which are believed to be substantially correct, it appears that less than twenty-five per centum of the children and youth of Centre county have thus far been brought under Sabbath-school training.

GEO. M. YOCUM,
Secretary.

The Rev. Dr. Osborne then addressed the convention on the general condition of the Sabbath-school work. The speaker stated that while much remained to be done, much had already been accomplished—that the cause was rapidly advancing in every part of the world. He recommended that every school engage in mission work in its own vicinity.

The question box was then opened, and the various questions answered by the Rev. Alfred Taylor, in an instructive and entertaining manner. The closing hour of the convention was devoted to the discussion of "Our Work in the Temperance Cause," in which the Rev. B. McGann, Rev. J. E. Long, and others, engaged.

Gen. Buchanan, of Gregg township, offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this convention be tendered to the speakers who have so ably addressed us, and the citizens of Bellefonte, who have so hospitably entertained the Delegates to this convention.

During the evening a collection was taken up to defray the general expenses of the association, which amounted to the sum of twenty-one dollars and fifty c'ts.

The attendance of Delegates, and friends of the cause, was large and encouraging, and the interest increased with each succeeding session. The Court House was filled to its utmost capacity, at every evening session, and the convention was felt, by all, to be a decided success, and it is believed that its influence will give a new impetus to the Sabbath school cause in every part of the county.

GEO. M. YOCUM,
Secretary.

DOES IT PAY TO ADVERTISE?—Don't it? The man who says it don't pay to advertise is, just as likely as not, doing it in some way, all the time. If the merchant hangs a few of his goods outside the door, he is advertising. If the cabinet maker hangs a chair or other article of furniture at his shop door, he is advertising. If a man lose a horse or a cow and tells every one he meets, he is advertising his loss. The doctor who has a boy to run into church and call him out in haste, is advertising.

A man cannot do business without advertising, and the only question should be, the best way to advertise. If you have a lot of personal property to sell, which is best; to write out a few notices that not one in fifty will stop to read, or to go to a printer and have a lot of well displayed posters? If you are in business of any kind, is it not better to keep a regular standing advertisement in your home paper, that will stare your friends and customers in the face every week, rather than trust to the old fogy idea of—"Oh, they know me?"

But, says Mr. Saveall, advertising costs money. Very true, and so does everything else; and it is a good thing for you that advertising does cost something. If it did not, every little worthless concern would stand as good a chance for being known as the very best and most useful. If you want the people to know that you have anything to sell advertise it in your home paper first, then in your neighboring papers. The man who has a reputable business, and spends the most in a liberal system of advertising, is the one who makes the most money.

POTATOES.—Keller & Musser purchased, last week, three hundred bushels of River-bottom potatoes. They are very large and good. Price, $1 per bus.

CROWDED OUT.—Our local matter has been crowded out to make room for the very interesting report of the Sabbath School Convention.

WHERE THE LAUGH CAME IN.—I saw an old gentleman the other day who looked the very soul of contentment. Bright smiles lit up his honest old face, and happiness dwelt in every feature; though his gait was unsteady, and his locks were whitened by the frost of time, his heart was happy and light, for peace had spread her snowy wings above him; and joys, Oh, endless joys were looming up gloriously in the distance! I politely bowed to the venerable, happy old man, who stopped, and, taking me by the hand, said: "Young man, you look troubled. The furrows of care are visible upon your brow; take my advice, and your days shall be long in the land. Blessings innumerable shall shower upon you, and your way shall be clear and bright as a summer's sky. Go to Harper Bro's, those whole-souled, clever merchants, on Spring street, and buy more, and better goods, with less money, than can be bought at any other store in the county." I straightway went and did so, and, I fear, in my extreme happiness, I shall laugh myself to death. †

Gentlemen:—Your excellent Catarrh Remedy has accomplished for my wife more than we could have believed without having tried it. We had given up all hope of ever effecting a cure in her case. We had already tried almost every other remedy proposed by the medical faculty without the least benefit, some really were an injury. Her sense of smell was destroyed, and her vision becoming much injured from the disease having produced closure of the "tear duct," and even the sense of taste was much impaired. With the use of three boxes only, of your Remedy, I believe the Catarrh is entirely healed. What a great work it has done in driving away the dark brooding dispair that had settled on our minds. I shall ever recommend your Catarrh Remedy to all with whom I meet afflicted with the dread disease.

Yours truly,
JOHN WRIGHT.

Dr. Sage's Remedy will be sent to any address by mail, on receipt of sixty cents. Address R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

MILESBURG.—I was born in Milesburg, and resided there for twenty years.—Nearly twenty years ago I moved to the West, and, like many others who moved West, I have succeeded very well, and, after an absence of twenty years, have returned to visit my native town, beautiful and dear to me as ever.

Nature has done much for Milesburg; but I am sorry her capitalists have done but little. Where can you find a more beautiful site for a town, and where will you find such water power, affording facilities for all kinds of manufactories?—If we only had such water power out West, with our enterprising men at the helm, we could build up a populous city in a few years. But this is not in the West, so I must not speculate on what might be, and, in this age of progress, look around me, and see what changes have been made in Milesburg in the last twenty years.

The first thing I was led to notice was the improvements of the town. Many of the buildings have undergone repairs, and present a neat appearance, while others are as they were some twenty years ago, only the worse for the wear, and considerably more dilapidated. The churches are new, and are a credit to the place. On the site of the old Baptist church, I found a neat brick schoolhouse, far superior to any house of the kind in Bellefonte, or any other portion of the county. This house reflects great credit on the town, and to the enterprising men, who constituted the School Board at the time of its erection.

The Baptist, Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal, are all neat and comfortable churches, and an honor to the place. The Ministers are all able and good men, and are doing all they can for the cause of God and humanity. I am told, however, that the Rev. E. Butler, pastor of the M. E. Church, an old veteran in the cause of Christ, is slow to move in the Temperance cause. I have heard no reason assigned for this.

I also paid a visit to the Milesburg grave-yard, to look, perhaps, for the last time, upon the resting place of those with whom I once associated. When I entered this silent "city of the dead"—this sacred spot, where rest the loved ones of both rich and poor. O, what a heart-sickening sight! I could not believe that this was the grave yard where sleeps so many of the dear ones—fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers—relations and friends of the still living people of Milesburg. I could not believe that the intelligent and christian people of this place, would suffer their grave yard to present such an appearance! Nothing but one conglomerate mass of briers and thorns, presenting more the appearance of a lair for wild beasts, than a christian burying ground—an ever memorable spot, containing the turfy mounds of departed friends. I mused on the scene before me, and again and again, asked myself the question: Can it be, is it possible, that this is the Milesburg grave-yard? I moved around, as best I could, for the thorns, with cautious feet above the sleeping dead, to try and find the resting place of some one whose name was familiar, when I was met by a little girl, (induced there, perhaps, to gather wild flows as the place is repulsive rather than inviting,) from whom I learned that not a grave could be dug without exhuming the bones of some one of the quiet sleepers. She assured me that this was the truth. For the respect and credit of the living citizens of Milesburg, for the honor they should bear those who rest from their labors in this "city of the dead," I hope that they will go to work, without further delay, and clean up, and, if needs be, enlarge the "old grave-yard."

Before this communication reaches you, or, at least, before your next number will reach this place, I will be en route for my home in the west. If ever I visit my native town again, I hope to learn that these few broken thoughts, penned by a sincere friend of the town and its people, have had their desired effect.

A VISITOR.

BRUTAL.—We understand that a Mrs. Beaver, living near Centre Hall, was last week the victim of a most unprovoked, and shameful, personal attack from one of her immediate neighbors. Dogs, jockey-sticks, mattocks, &c., were freely employed, to the extent, we understand, that Mrs. B. is not expected to recover; and, should she, it will be with personal features most painfully outraged.

Special Notices.

THE "WORLD" REAPER AND MOWER.—This celebrated Reaper and Mower manufactured by E. Ball & Co., of Canton, Ohio, is taking the lead as a reaping and mowing machine wherever it has been introduced.—Any person who has tried the "World" will have nothing to do with any other reaper. It has proved a great success. Just what every farmer wants. The expressions of praise are so enthusiastic in many cases, that they seem extravagant, and as "seeing is believing" in this case, let everybody call on Isaac Haupt, near the Depot, or visit a neighbor who has purchased one, and examine it for themselves. Forney's Phil'a. Press, in speaking of the "World Reaper and Mower," draws somewhat striking comparisons which will be best appreciated if given in its own language:

"The World's Mower and Reaper—the best harvester ever made—is as far superior to all others as a peach is to a persimmon. Of all the machines for any purpose whatever which American ingenuity has invented there is not one so compact, simple, certain in its operations, so easy to manage, so light to draw, so strong or so durable. The ease with which it runs and works is literally marvellous, and yet so strongly is it made, and so well guarded against rust, rot, warping or breakage, that, as has been said, "it is no more likely to get out of order than a fifty-six weight." It is in short one of those pieces of perfect mechanism which work without noise, without trouble, and with the utmost certainty and despatch. It will last a life time. Costing a trifle more than far inferior machines, it makes up the difference over and over again by performing more work in better style in the same time, and in saving of trouble and repairs.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, June 2, '69.

Growing Root Crops.

To grow root crops to a good advantage, a rich piece of ground, free from weeds, should be selected—one in which the manure applied to previous crops is not exhausted, is better than a heavy application of coarse manure to the present crop. Coarse manure not finely spread, as is often the case, is very likely to induce a branching, scraggy growth of the roots. Fine manure well spread does better; and if put on in the fall, so the strength may be diffused through the soil, it does still better. A good clover sod that has had a good dressing of fine manure the previous fall, makes an excellent preparation. The large tap-roots of clover wedge apart and loosen up the soil more and deeper than other crops, and render the fine cultivation much easier and more certain, and at the same time add to the available plant food near the surface.

The land should be well and finely worked, making not merely a fine seed bed on the surface, but it should be made fine about as deep as it is plow'd. A clean clover sod that will soon rot and crumble down fine at the bottom of the furrow, it may not be best to disturb, but only make a good seed bed on the furrow. But in most other cases it is best to plow two or three times, and frequently use the harrow and roller besides. A good way is to plow and work the land early in the spring; then let it lie until the weeds are well started, when another thorough working will destroy one crop of weeds, and put the land in fine condition for the seed. If this can be done without another plowing, the worst crop of weeds will be destroyed, and not a little labor in tending be saved. A rather slight ridging is preferred; the seed is drilled on these ridges. By making the rows 2½ feet apart and very straight, most of the labor in tending may be done with a horse.

Carrots, Sugar beets and Mangold Wurtzles may be sown at any time in May when the land is in good condition to secure a quick germination and growth, so the crop may get the start of the weeds. Soaking and sprouting the seed has been practiced, and sometimes with the best results. But it is not always sure; if the land and weather are all favorable when the seed is ready, it will do well; but if storms and bad weather prevent sowing at the proper time on the one hand, or dry weather makes the soil so dry that it draws the moisture out of the soaked seed, on the other, failure may be the result. When the weather and the condition of the land can be foretold for a few days, it is a good plan to soak the seed; then with plenty of seed, so that if one is lost another may be sown, there is little risk and may be considerable gain, in starting the crop. While from May 1st to 20th is the best time to sow carrots and beets, very good crops have been grown by sowing early in June—the 20th is the usual time, but it may be questioned whether it is not better to sow earlier.

Any soil that will produce good corn ought to grow roots. The main point is sufficient fertility and pulverization. A sandy loam is generally preferred, because the latter is more readily secured, and with much less labor. It is also sooner dry after a rain and ready to work at odd spells, when something to do is wanted to fill up the time. On such soils it is easier and more pleasant harvesting roots, while they come out cleaner, and, after a little drying, most of the adhering soil will rattle off in handling.—Sandy loams are thought more suited to turnips and carrots, while heavier loams are preferred for beets and mangolds. Indeed any fertile, finely worked clay loam will grow the latter, also good carrots; and so good crops of both have been grown on a sandy loam.

Where only a few hundred bushels are grown, or even a few acres, it is a good plan to sow near the buildings, where they will be handy to work in at odd spells and on broken days. A good deal of hoeing and working may be done in this way without feeling the loss of the time; indeed most of the work may be clear gain.

The first hoeing should be as soon as the third or rough leaf appears.—With a sharp new hoe, the corners standing out well, the rows may be hoed very close, leaving only half to three-fourths of an inch space for the plants, and no thick bunches; then there will be much less labor in thinning out. If first hoeing is thus done when they are small, and the second when some two inches high, nearly all the thinning out may be done with a sharp-cornered hoe, taking out surplus plants the same as weeds. I seldom use my fingers in weeding root-crops. Practice has shown that there are so many ways in which the corner of a hoe can be used to take weeds out of a row, that I find it much easier and quicker to do it with a hoe.—Hoeing often is easier, cheaper, better for the crop, and more certain to kill the weeds. Then the weeds don't have time to injure the crop, or to be much in the way; nor does the land have time to get hard. It is less work to hoe twice—each time before the weeds get an inch high, than once after they are four inches high, while in the latter case the growth of the crop will be checked by the weeds, and in the former, increased by the frequent hoeing. The same rule applies to working with a horse, with this difference, that while the cultivator or horse-hoe will kill all, or very nearly all the small weeds, many of the larger ones that have been left until four or five inches high, will again take root and grow.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

Cut Early Grass.

Mr. Editor.—There has been considerable discussion on this subject, but not much improvement has been made in cutting grass early. Some say, "We shall begin haying earlier next season." The time soon comes round and finds them in a hurry about other work; the hoeing must be done, and the few days in which they might take advantage of the haying has passed away, and now they must hurry and drive both early and late, while they are lossing much in the quality of the hay. There are many tons of hay put into the barn the latter part of August that are not worth more than half price. A farmer had better pay three dollars per day to get the hay crop secured before the seeds are hardened, than to pay one dollar per day after the seed is ripe. I have known intelligent farmers to put off hiring help till the latter part of haying, because they could hire fifty cts. cheaper per day than at the beginning of haying. Such men are penny wise and pound foolish. If June grass will make nice yellow butter, why will not June cut grass make nice winter butter? Then how pleasant to have such nice hay to feed out in the spring?

My stock has always done well on early made hay. I had rather have early made hay without grain, than late cut hay with grain.

Perhaps some would like to know what is late and early cutting. Last season if my haying could have been finished the 18th of July it wo'd have been secured in good order. I did not finish till the 15th of August and find the hay very poor and the cattle know it. It will spend well, but the cattle do not lay on much fat, neither does it increase the flow of milk. Some of my neighbors did not finish till the 1st of September, and this was June grass. The seed had nearly all fallen out, so that it was not worth cutting. If this grass is cut early or when in blossom, it will make excellent fodder; but cut as late as some cut it, you will find it worth no more than rye straw.

How can the hay crop be secured in better season? We must employ more help or use labor-saving machines.—The mowing-machines, the horse-rake, and the hay-tedder are great helps; but if the farmer does not begin soon enough with these the grass may get too ripe.

It would be very pleasant to be all done haying by the tenth of July, then you would have plenty of time to secure your grain crops in time, and the rest of the season before fall work you could be plowing, picking rocks, cutting bushes, dragging muck, &c.

Farmers, think of these things, and try to make a little improvement each year, and in a few years you will make decided progress. L. B.

Mt. Vernon, N. H., May 10, '69.

Go to Farming.—A good living is what comparatively few men succeed in making in a village or city life, and yet nothing is more easy to accomplish on the farm. Besides, there is a pleasure in cultivating and embellishing the earth, improving and increasing its products, and thus adding to the aggregate of human happiness. Why, then, should young men hesitate to be farmers? It is both profitable and honorable. It is the nearest approximation to independence that a man, as a member of society, can make. A gentleman farmer—and all farmers are, or should be, gentlemen—belongs to an order of nobility that is not indebted to place holders for installation, and may, if he chooses, be ranked among the greatest benefactors of the human race. Let the idle young men go to work on farms, and quit seeking clerkships, In short, go to farming and quit begging.

About Horses.—Horses, as a general thing, get too much licking and too little feed. If a man loses his hat while driving his horse, he licks the horse to pay for it. If he runs into another wagon through his own carelessness, he licks his horse to make it all right. If his horse slips or stumbles, he gets licked for it—if he does anything, he gets licked for it—if he don't do anything he gets the same. A great many horses know "a sight" more than their drivers, and if they could change places with them, society at large would be gainers, and so would horses.

An English farmer broke up 30 acres of water meadow which produced nothing but coarse edge grasses and rushes. After it was thoroughly drained and laid down to grass, he was able to cut four crops of green fodder annually of the best quality.—The same thing could be done in thousands of cases in this country.

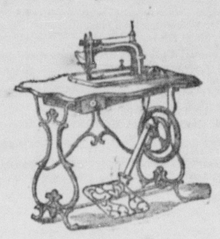
At a Farmers' Club in Ohio, the discussion of the question resulted in the conclusion that August and February are the most suitable months for cutting timber. In August the summer's growth is mature and firm, In February the circulation has been for two or three months suspended by the cold of winter.

Manure is greatly injured by lying in the rain. It needs shelter as much as cattle.

SEWING MACHINE.

AMERICAN BUTTON-HOLE OVER-SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.



In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.
